USDINR Futures (Oct)
Rating's agency Moody's upgrading India's outlook is a positive development but should have limited near term impact on USDINR. There is so much promise in the inter-market space, with oil and gas prices on the boil, inflation risks are high due to supply chains being choked and rising commodity prices, yields rising but none of that has been able to shake the currency markets from their slumber, especially USDINR. Near term trading needs to focus on the bias and that is upward. Hence, Buy futures with SL below 74.40 on a daily closing basis. One can even buy 74.50/75.00 call spread, expiry: 14th October, weekly.

GBPINR Futures (Oct)
The widening interest rate differentials in favour of GBP allowed GBPINR to rise over the past couple of trading sessions. If Oil continues to boil then GBPINR can benefit from higher energy prices and even test 102.00 levels. Buy on decline as 101.40/50 will act as a strong support.

EURINR Futures (Oct)
EURINR witnessed recovery from towards 86.70 on the back of stronger than expected final service sector PMI data. However, upside remains capped due to rising US bond yields. Overall stronger USDINR may offset a weaker EURUSD, keeping EURINR ranged between 86 & 87.

JPYINR Futures (Oct)
JPYINR has been stuck in a broad range of 66.20 and 68.50 for the past 6 months. Within that range has narrowed further to 66.20 to 67.40 levels. Rise in US bond yields remains negative but weakness in stocks are supportive. One can buy dips near 66.40 with SL below 66.00 levels.

What Options Open Interest (OI) Saying?

With Oil prices on the up move, volatility tends to increase in USDINR. Large OI is outstanding in the 75.00 strike call option, which will offer stiff resistance to futures near those levels. At the same time, large OI in 74.50 put will offer support.
