- According to FIEO, technical difficulties and unwilling state tax departments have led to exporters nationwide still waiting to receive an estimated Rs 60 billion worth of input tax credit refunds.

WORLD NEWSWIRE

- China's state media called the arrest of Chinese tech giant Huawei Technologies Co.'s chief financial officer in Canada a "despicable rogue's approach," painting the move as a politically motivated effort to contain China's rise.

FX VIEW

US stock market recovered sharply, with Dow recovering 800 points from the intra-day low. On S&P 500, several times, market has bounced from closer to 2600 handle, as it did yesterday. If this is a sign of a major bottom being hammered above 2600 on the index, then it augurs well for general risk appetite going forward. Downbeat US economic data and talk of Fed going slow on rate hikes helped the risk assets recover but it kept Dollar under pressure. US Jobs figures were far from impressive.

The ADP non-farm employment change reading slipped from 225K in October to 179K in November, lower than the projected fall to 195K. Challenger, Gray & Christmas reported a 51.5% year-over-year jump in job cuts. A bulk of these came from General Motors' plans to cut 15% of its workforce.

Factory orders in October slipped 2.1% versus the expected 1.9% drop while the earlier month's reading was downgraded from 0.7% to a meagre 0.2% uptick. However, ISM services PMI ticked higher from 60.3 to 60.7 versus the estimated dip to 59.1. Underlying data revealed that the gains were mostly spurred by higher production, new orders, and prices. The employment component, however, slid from 59.7 to 58.4 to reflect a weaker pace of growth, piling on downbeat expectations for the NFP.

A report on WSJ indicated that the Fed is likely to push through with its December hike but might switch back to wait-and-see mode in 2019.

On OPEC, the meeting will continue today as well. They are yet to reach consensus on how much to cut. If they underwhelm, then crude oil prices can decline, helping Rupee in the process. It will not just be the Rupee, Indian bond yields too will fall, helping interest rate sensitive stocks as well.

Last phase of polling got underway in the major states around the country. Traders will keep eyes glued to exit poll results tonight. Results will be declared on 11th December. Till then, implied volatility can remain very high and plunge by over 200 bps thereafter from 9% ATM to less than 7% annualized.

TECHNICAL VIEW & RUPEE CROSSES:

Technically, USDINR's inability to sustain above 71.00 on spot and below 70.00 is a sign of a range to unfold. December mid to January mid seasonality demands a low volatile regime. We would witness that this year, after the drama gets over post-election results. Then a strong strangle or on a safe side, short reverse condor would be suggested.
