FX VIEW

Yesterday's move in the Dollar Rupee smacked of a long capitulation. Capitulations generally occur at the fag end of a move. USDINR touched a low of 69.66 on spot from 70.68 intra-day high. I have attached the option market indicator, called risk reversals to map the sentiment in the USDINR market. Risk reversal is calculated as the difference in implied volatility between out of money call option and out of money put option, having same delta. Currently spread between calls and put IVs have collapsed to levels, where historically, intermediate bottoms occurred. However, just oversold sentiments is not a sufficient condition for a reversal, there needs to be compelling factors which can force the shorts to cover. Oil continues to plunge and hence Rupee has nothing to worry from there. However, global equity markets are tanking and even the credit markets are showing stress. If something has to trigger a short covering rally, it can a contagion risk. If Brent collapses to 40 dollars a barrel, I expect EM credit markets and energy related bonds to come under stress, like it occurred during 2014-15, which can whack USDINR higher, due to temporary outflows.

WHAT IS A GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN?

Under the separation of powers created by the United States Constitution, the United States Congress has the sole power of the purse and responsibility for appropriating government funds. The spending bills must start in the House of Representatives and then be approved by the Senate, and-upon passage of a final version by both houses-then go to the President of the United States. If the President signs the bills, they become law. If instead the President vetoes them, they go back to Congress, where the veto can be overridden by a two-thirds vote.

Government shutdowns tend to occur when the President and one or both of the chambers of Congress are unable to resolve disagreements over budget allocations before the existing budget cycle ends.

WHAT HAPPENS DURING A GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN?

A full federal government shutdown causes a large number of civilian federal employees to be on unpaid leave. However, only non-essential Federal employees are furloughed. Essential Fed employees, viz, Security forces continue to be paid.

HOW LONG CAN THIS CONTINUE?

In the past it has lasted for a day to a couple of weeks.

IMPACT ON USD AND US STOCKS?

Negative. As it denotes political uncertainty which is generally negative for USD as well as for US stocks. However, US bonds can rally on this news.

TECHNICAL VIEW

USDINR, intermediate trend is downward. However, the pair needs to break down below 69.60 on spot, to trigger a reversal in the primary uptrend. Otherwise, risk of a counter trend bounce back towards 71.00 remains. Nevertheless, incase of a breakdown below 69.60, play for a test of 68.50/80 levels on spot. On INR crosses, EURINR is well supported between 78.10/78.60 levels on spot. A range of 78.50-81.50 can be in play for sometime. GBPINR remains in downtrend but well supported around 87.70/88.00 levels. JPYINR, ranged between 61-64.00
